

Membership fees and other charges (from 1 July 2020)

Where do your SAFA membership* fees go?

Membership of SAFA includes the following benefits:

Insurance - about 25 to 30 % of your membership fees

- Insurance (third party liability, office holders, travel insurance, etc.) These insurances are a regulatory requirement, and allow us to fly in Australia.

Administration - about 40 to 45% of your membership fees

- Aviation Administration. SAFA is a self regulating aviation body under Australian law. Your SAFA staff work with government agencies and produce appropriate policy which allows us to fly.

- Sports Administration. Our sporting authority flows from the FAI and Sports Australia, and your SAFA staff help to ensure that the sport is governed appropriately.

- Safety Administration. Our sports have inherent risk. We are required, and it is appropriate, to have a comprehensive safety management system to reduce the risk as much as is reasonably practical. Your SAFA staff help to administer that system.

- Office Administration. The SAFA office supports members by helping with certificates and other qualifications, and answering your queries.

Communications - about 10 % of your membership fees

- Internal Communications. SAFA produces six issues of Sky Sailor each year to help communication with members.

- External Communications. SAFA communicates with media, the public and other external organisations to help grow the sport.

Development - about 20 % of your membership fees

- Sports Development. SAFA supports growing the sport through the range of initiatives outlined our strategy.

Note that this view of your fees does not include the regional development levy set by each state association, nor does it include the support from CASA applied to helping with administration

Membership Fees: (Inclusive of GST)

New Student Pilot Members

Provided for members undergoing initial training towards the issue of a Pilot Certificate.

Lapses after 12 months training or completion of a Pilot Certificate (whichever comes first).

Does not provide membership beyond completion of flight training.

Provides insurance while operating under the direct supervision of an approved SAFA Instructor.

Upon completion of a recognised Flight Training Course and with the recommendation of an approved SAFA instructor, a Supervised HG, PG2, PPG or WM Pilot Certificate can be issued, subject to the candidate's payment of the Certified Pilot Membership fee.

$44

New Certified Pilot - Full Member

Provided for new members on issuing of a pilot certificate (newly certified), or re-joining after an extended absence longer than 12 months, or an overseas qualified pilot upon immigrating to Australia.

Paid on a pro-rata basis until 31 Aug, the next renewal period.

The Regional Development Levy is also payable at the same time (on a pro-rata basis).

Includes insurance, administration, communications and development (renewing member discounts are not available for members paying the New Certified Pilot Fee).

$315

Renewing Membership Fees:

Annual Fees for members with all types of pilot certificates who are renewing - Full Members.

The membership renewal date is 31 Aug each year. Late membership payments are back dated.

Members who renew late, but within 12 months, are required to pay the full fee. Membership renewal is not calculated on a pro-rata basis.

Includes insurance, administration, communications and development.

The Regional Development Levy is also payable at the same time.

$315

Regional Development Levies

Regional Development Levies are collected by SAFA and disseminated to Regional Associations to provide benefits to SAFA members in that Region.

Regional Development Levies are not automatically a membership fee for a regional association or club.

Regional Associations set the amount to be levied.

They are payable based on the residential address of the pilot.

Regional Development Levies are not subject to GST.
